For thirty years there has been no improvement in the composition of porous plaster. The recent discovery of Capcine and its addition to an improved porous plaster has introduced to the consumers and the public, an article of progress. The objection to the ordinary article is its slow action. Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster overcomes this great objection by effecting in a few hours what the ordinary porous plaster accomplishes in days and weeks of continuous wear.

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters are preferred to all others on the following grounds: grounds: First—heir composition is of an im-

The Trustees of the Cairo City Property desire to est public attention o the merits of their poperty, comprisng a considerable porton of the City of Cairo, In Alexander County, In the State of Illinois, and lands mmediately adja-

This city, as is well known, is situated at the confluence of the olds and Mississippi rivers, at the head of uninterupted navigation on the Mississippi, being below obstructions by ice in the winter and low water in summer, and (tus has a clear and open river communication at all times over the Mississippi and its tributaries, with all the country south, to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean. Cairo has also the same character of communication with all the country north of the streams flowing by it, when those from the streams flowing gable by teason of ice or low water.

Before the era of Railroads, Cairo had a community position as a centre of communere and avergation. This importance of position she still possesses, but has now the additional advantage of being a great railroad centre, a number of the most important railroads in the Valley of the Mississippi conversing to and having their termini there. Among these, coming from the north are the great illinois Central Railroad, which traverses the entire State of fillinois from its extreme northern and north-eastern to its southern limits, and by its connections extends into all the great northwestern grain producing States; the Cairo and Vincennes, extending from Cairo to the City of Vincennes, in the State of Indiana, where its connections afford direct railroad communications with all Eastern cities; and the Cairo & St. Louis Railroad, affording a direct railroad communication with the City of St. Louis and all the railroads centering there. The roads coming from the South are the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern and the Mobile and Ohio Railroads, which give direct railroad communication with the cities of Mobile and New Orleans, and other Southern Atlantic sea ports, and by connecting roads with all the country south of Cairo; and coming from the southwest is the Cairo, Arkansas and Texas Railroad, which affords similar communication with Southern Missouri, Arkansas and Texas Railroad, which affords similar communication with Southern Missouri, Arkansas and Texas Railroad, which affords similar communication with Southern Missouri, Arkansas and Texas Railroad, which affords similar communication with the Texas and Pacific Road when it is completed, thus giving direct communication with the Texas and Pacific Road when it is completed, thus giving direct communication with the Texas and Pacific Road when it is completed, and other railroads both in Illinois and in States south of the Ohio river, which will also terminate at Cairo, are in course of construction of these will greatly increase the railroad communication

Cairo has a moral, intelligent, liberal and enterprising population of about 12,000—has a superior system of public schools, which, with others conducted by private enterprise, afford unsurpassed educational advantages—is possessed of vell-established churches of nearly every denomination—has public and private buildings of a superior character—has a climate, which for salubrity and healthful influences cannot be surpassed—has a well-regulated and efficient municipal organization, its streets lighted with gas, and other moropolitan advantages, which make it highly desirable and in reality not to be excelled as a place of permanent residence.

Lots and land in Cairo are now offered at very low prices, affording invorable opportunities to purchase, and the owners present the location to the public as offering unrivaled advantages for the successful establishment of commercial or manufacturing enterprises, and the best locality in the country for prolitable investment of capital.
